I. INTRODUCTION TO THE DIRECTORY

This directory seeks to provide succinct yet reasonably comprehensive coverage of resources for leadership in volunteering. Typically, such resource assistance is delivered in the form of training, education, consultation, and publications. Beyond that, organizations and people are strikingly diversified in scope, style, and siting; a glance at the table of contents readily confirms that.

The geographical scope is North America - the U.S. and Canada. I have tended to see this slice of the world as a whole; hence, states and provinces are inter-mixed alphabetically in the listings. This may be rather more integration than many Canadians prefer. My apologies in that case. I do tend to see North America together, having lived for substantial periods both North and South of the border between Canada and the U.S. Beyond that, I am reinforcing the point that Canadians can and have been volunteerism resources to Americans quite as often as vice versa.

Encyclopedic listings of this type have been pioneered by the National Information Center on Volunteerism, by Harriet Kipps of Four-One-One, and by Sue Vineyard. The present directory is justified as an update in a rapidly expanding and complicating resource structure. Indeed, some resource categories such as "Associations of Volunteer Coordinators" were not even mentioned in most directories up until a year or two ago.

Beyond that, the concentration here is on location rather than explanation. That is, I assume the reader knows what a volunteer center, an RSVP, or a trainer is, and simply seeks a convenient way to tap into these resources, or network with them. Expanded opportunity for networking is the outcome I most hope for in the use of this directory. This would justify several years of research invested in preparation. Not incidentally, I decided that this time and effort, rather than elaborate physical format, would be the more appreciated by users.

Much more remains to be done to locate all the resources accurately. I hope the reader will volunteer to help via the USER RESPONSE FORM in Section III.

SECTION A: 1986 DOVIA DIRECTORY

INTRODUCTION

This is the third annual directory of associations of volunteer coordinators/leaders in North America. As previously, these are defined as local, regional, or national associations of people with a career or other serious interest in leadership of volunteers. Over 200 such addresses are listed here. An additional 200 addresses in our files are not listed either because they have not been verified in the last 18 to 24 months or because a parent organization such as ASDVS does not want its directory addresses used by other than its own members. We estimate there are at least 600 such associations in all North America.

Addresses are listed alphabetically by name of state or province. Within a state or province, associations of broader scope, e.g. statewide, tend to be listed first where this is known with reasonable certainty.

Other Yellowfire publications dealing with such associations are as follows: (order number in parenthesis)

LOCAL ASSOCIATIONS OF VOLUNTEER COORDINATORS:
A PROFILE OF NORTH AMERICAN DOVIAS (#1502)

ACTIVATING YOUR LOCAL ASSOCIATION OF VOLUNTEER COORDINATORS (#1503)

THE DOVIA EXCHANGE (A Quarterly Journal) (#1504)

THE NATIONAL DOVIA NETWORK (#1505)

Copies of the catalog describing these and other relevant Yellowfire publications are available on request from Yellowfire Press.

SECTION D: CITY OR COUNTY VOLUNTEER OFFICES (A SAMPLE)

These are like Volunteer Centers, except that they place volunteers in the public sector, e.g. city and/or county government, while Volunteer Centers can place people in both private and public sectors. This "restriction" still leaves vast scope for the operations of city volunteer programs. The director of such a program in a moderately sized city or county may be serving as a resource to 15 to 20 government divisions or departments.

City/county volunteer departments are one of the fastest growing parts of the resource structure for volunteerism, and we have not kept up with rapid growth well enough to offer a reasonably complete directory for this edition. Mainly by way of illustration, we offer here a reasonably complete listing for one state only: Ohio. Note that there are almost as many city/county volunteer offices as there are volunteer centers in this state. If this is a typical balance, there would be 400 or more such offices in the U.S. We eagerly welcome your contribution of more addresses for the next edition of this directory. We have only about 60 now.

Sue Avedikian, Volunteer Coordinator; Office of the City Manager, 300 East Central Avenue, West Carrollton, Ohio 45449. (513) 859-5181.

Joyce Conner; Active Volunteer Program, City of Kettering, 3600 Shroyer Road, Kettering, Ohio 45429. (513) 296-2433.

Sarah Elliston, Program Manager; Volunteer Cincinnati, 2400 Reading Road, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202. (513) 721-CITY, 762-7186; (513) 762-7100.

Ellen Forman or Annie Garda; Project MOVE, Office of the Mayor, 601 Lakeside Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio 44114. (216) 664-3536.

Rusty Groselle, Director; Columbus Volunteer Corps, City Hall - Room 123, Columbus, Ohio 43215. (614) 222-6404.

Glenn Harper, Coordinator; Dayton Volunteers, 101 West Third Street, Dayton, Ohio 45402. (513) 443-3775.

Dorothy Jackson, Deputy Mayor, City of Akron, Akron, Ohio 44308.

Allison Roberts, Community Resource Coordinator; Orange City Schools, 32000 Chagrin Boulevard, Pepper Pike, Ohio 44124. (216) 831-8600, x 400.

Sharon Szalay, Volunteer Coordinator; Miamisburg Volunteers, 10 North First Street, Miamisburg, Ohio 45342. (513) 866-3303, x 186.

Jean Tarr, Coordinator; City of Centerville, 100 West Spring Valley Road, Centerville, Ohio 45459. (513) 433-7151.

SECTION E: STATE OR PROVINCIAL RESOURCE CENTERS FOR VOLUNTEERISM

Somewhat paralleling volunteer centers at the state or provincial level, these offices have generic responsibility for the encouragement and support of volunteerism in their geographic area. Most of the addresses provided below were certified as current in late December, 1985. However, there is a great deal of variation in the level of activity between one office and another.

For considerable help in the preparation of this list, thanks go to Mr. Ken Priebe, Manager, State Offices of Voluntary Citizens Participation, the ACTION agency, Washington, D.C.

The National Citizens Participation Council (NCPC). 1620 Eye Street Northwest, Suite 514, Washington, D.C. 20006. (202) 293-8530.

NCPC is a non-profit organization committed to and actively engaged in the development and presentation of quality training, technical assistance, and information dissemination programs.

A recent project was designed to provide training and technical assistance to State administrators of the Small Cities, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG), and Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) programs through a series of volunteer leveraging training seminars. The primary goal of the seminars is to increase the capacity of the administrator to establish and implement volunteer leveraging systems.

National Council of Returned Peace Corps Volunteers. Box 1404, Omaha, Nebraska 68101. (402) 554-1444.

The National Council is a membership organization composed of former Peace Corps volunteers who wish to continue community service.

National Council on Corporate Volunteerism (NCCV). c/o Shirley Keller, The National Center for Citizen Involvement, 1111 North 119th Street, Suite 500, Arlington, Virginia 22209. (703) 276-0542.

The purpose of NCCV is to promote volunteerism by serving as a national resource for the development and expansion of corporate employee volunteer programs and by acting as a clearinghouse for the exchange of information on corporate volunteerism.

The National DOVIA Network. c/o Ivan Scheier, Yellowfire Press, 1705 14th Street, Suite 199, Boulder, Colorado 80302.

The Network publishes a newsletter and directory, and otherwise seeks to encourage improved communication and sharing among local, state, and provincial associations of careerists in the leadership of volunteers.

National School Volunteer Program (NSVP). 701 North Fairfax Street, Suite 320, Alexandria, Virginia 22314. (703) 836-4880.

A national membership organization which helps to improve school volunteer programs. Its membership includes volunteers, volunteer directors, teachers, school administrators, and others who believe that school volunteers make a significant contribution to the education of children.

National Institute for Advanced Study and Implementation of Voluntary Action. (Provisional name - planned to begin in fall, 1986.)

Advanced study will be encouraged via think tanks and action incubators, publications, information networks, demonstration projects, and a national clearinghouse of "circuit riders". Temporary forwarding address is Ivan Scheier, c/o Yellowfire Press, 1705 14th Street, Suite 199, Boulder, Colorado 80302.

National Self Help Resource Center, Inc. c/o Greta Kottler, 173 Connecticut Avenue, Suite 200, Washington, D.C. 20009. (202) 387-1080.

NSHRC is a membership organization which acts as a national source and technical assistance broker for community self help initiatives. It administers a national network of community resource centers which provide volunteer technical support for groups or individuals wishing to become involved in community planning and decision making.

National Society for Internships and Experiential Education. 122 St. Mary's Street, Second Floor, Raleigh, North Carolina 27605. (919) 834-7536.

United Way of America (UWA). 701 North Fairfax Street, Alexandria, Virginia 22314-2045. (703) 836-7100.

UWA provides leadership and service to over 1400 local United Ways in fundraising, fiscal, and program management. They also are engaged in research and liaison with other national organizations and the government. They produce a variety of campaign aids for use by local United Ways, as well as training packages for volunteers on boards and volunteer management generally.

Voluntary Action Resource Center (VARC). 1625 West Eighth Avenue, Vancouver, B.C., Canada V6J 1T9. (604) 731-6168.

Distributes publications throughout Canada and U.S.; other resources tend to concentrate on British Columbia and Western Canada.

VOLUNTEER: The National Center for Citizen Involvement, 1111 North 19th Street, Suite 500, Arlington, Virginia 22209. (703) 276-0542.

A membership organization with various associate plans for corporations, individuals, and voluntary organizations. It was originally founded in 1970 as a private, non-profit, non-partisan organization to stimulate new responses to America's most pressing needs through greater recognition, utilization and coordination of volunteers. This mission remains as well as that of disseminating information about volunteer programs and administration.

Volunteers from Abroad. c/o Voluntary Service, 134 West 26th Street, New York City, New York 10001. (212) 206-7307.

Facilitates opportunities for Christian youth from other nations to serve as volunteers in the U.S.

Volunteers in Prevention, Prosecution, Probation, Prison, Parole (VIP). 200 Washington Square Plaza, Royal Oak, Michigan 48067. (313) 398-8550.

An organization to support and promote citizen involvement in courts and corrections programs.

Volunteers in Technical Assistance (VITA). 1815 North Lynn Street, Suite 200, Arlington, Virginia 22209. (703) 276-1800.

VITA is a national organization working to support and promote economic development activities in foreign countries. They place volunteer consultants in foreign countries to support existing programs and activities and develop new technology.

Many national consultants and trainers (see that section) have their own organizations which are clearly of national and international resource significance.

SECTION 1: TRAINERS AND CONSULTANTS IN VOLUNTEERISM

These are in addition to the hundreds of people who operate largely as salaried trainers and consultants by virtue of staff roles in Volunteer Centers, State Offices of Volunteerism, and National Resource Organizations. Also not listed here are people who serve only or mainly as in-house consultants to a single organization.

Listing here does not necessarily constitute endorsement; it only means the person presents herself/himself as a Trainer and Consultant in Volunteerism, and has some experience in that role. Background on many of these people is provided in "Trainers and Consultants in Volunteerism: A First Registry", Yellowfire Press Order #102.

None Later List

SECTION K: COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

Noted here are colleges and universities with some major involvement in volunteerism, via teaching, research, demonstration project development, administrative, and other support.

This listing is only an introductory sample, a nucleus around which a much larger and more representative enumeration can be developed for the next edition of this directory. Some idea of the larger scope of university interest is given by a roster of recent inquiries to Marlene Wilson, kindly shared by her. There were 60 colleges and universities on that list. Moreover, the Association of Voluntary Action Scholars (see National Organizations) numbers many score academicians in its membership. Each of them represents interest and activity in volunteerism at their own college or university.

The present list, however, is restricted to those colleges and universities whose involvement is known directly by the editor. Even here, the level of certainty is sometimes less than perfect.

This is the 1987 Supplement to the 1986 Directory of Volunteerism, published by Yellowfire Press.

The supplement has very little value by itself without cross-reference to the main 1986 directory, which can be purchased directly from Yellowfire Press.

Additions and changes in the 1987 Supplement are keyed to page numbers and sections of the 1986 Directory. The one exception is Section C, Retired Senior Volunteer Programs (RSVP). The 1987 Supplement Section C entirely replaces its counterpart in the 1986 Directory.

The 1986 Directory with the 1987 Supplement is the most complete enumeration of volunteerism resources ever assembled. We hope they prove useful to you.
